APR CONSULTING AWARDED 10-YEAR CONTRACT WITH NASA'S JET PROPULSION LABORATORY

The company's immediate focus will be on transitioning more than 300 employees

DIAMOND BAR, Calif., December 9, 2021 -- APR Consulting, Inc. (APR), a certified minority- and woman-owned business enterprise (MWBE) and nationally respected professional recruitment and contingent workforce solutions provider, today announced that it has been awarded the Temporary Support and Services (TSAS) contract for NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) in Pasadena, Calif. JPL is a federally funded research and development center managed by the California Institute of Technology (Caltech) for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA). The transition to the new contract, which APR estimates at more than $500 million over 10 years, begins on February 1, 2022.

"We're extremely proud and humbled for this opportunity to support NASA's mission of exploration by augmenting JPL resources and capabilities," said Aaron Stone, chief operating officer of APR Consulting.

"Being in a position to support the demanding and critically important work that the people at JPL do every day is both an honor and a tremendous responsibility that the entire APR team takes very seriously. We're looking forward to building on the trust they've placed in us and to proving ourselves to be a valuable resource to the entire organization long term."

Added CEO and Founder Linda Stone: "As a former professional in the aerospace industry, I'm especially excited that APR has won this opportunity to serve an organization of JPL's caliber and reputation. When I started APR in 1980, our first client was in aerospace and we've continued to serve the industry for decades. This is a full-circle milestone for us and one that enables us to continue to leverage our proven ability to deliver specialized, high-level talent."

As part of its contract, APR will be responsible for providing critical science, engineering and technical support for flagship NASA programs and numerous space science and technology development projects.
